- Her husband is going to school full-time to finish his degree.
- Found out she was pregnant 2 weeks ago
- Got laid off yesterday

Crisis Intervention

- The Unemployment Insurance (UI) program provides financial assistance to eligible workers who are unemployed through no fault of their own.
- Eligibility for UI benefits is based on the wages a person has earned, not on individual or family resources.
- In order to qualify for UI benefits, a person must be able and available to accept full-time work.
- UI benefits are funded entirely through a dedicated tax paid by employers, not employees.

Unemployment Insurance

- DWS administers various medical programs:
 - Family Medicaid;
 - Children's Health Insurance Program (CHIP);
 - Primary Care Network (PCN);
 - Utah Premium Partnership (UPP);
 - Aged, Blind, and Disabled (ABD);
- When customers apply for benefits, they simply check that they are interested in applying for medical assistance. Eligibility will then determine the appropriate medical program based on the customers' circumstances.

Medical Programs

- Jane has been married for 15 years, with 2 children in elementary school.
- She has a college degree, but has not worked the entire time she has been married.
- After her husband left for work this morning, she packed a bag for each of her children and herself and left home.
- The only thing she is certain of is that she needs to pick up her kids from school by 3:00. She doesn't know where they will go after that.

Crisis Intervention

- The Family Employment Program (FEP) is an employment-based program designed to help families increase their income and achieve self-sufficiency.
- FEP is available to eligible single adults with one or more dependent children and is time-limited to 36 months in a lifetime.
 - There is also a 2-parent program with different time-limits.
- Parents are required to participate to their full capacity with an Employment Counselor in employment-related activities.
- As part of this program Licensed Clinical Therapists are on staff to assist these families in managing crisis, trauma, change and developing strategies for success.

Family Employment Plan

- Under the direction of the USDA's Food and Nutrition Service, DWS administers the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP), also known as Food Stamps.
- The purpose of the Food Stamp program is to assist low-income households in being able to buy food.
- If approved for Food Stamps, customers may be required to participate in employment activities.

Food Stamps

- The purpose of the Child Care program is to support employment. Child Care assistance is available to eligible parents who are employed or participating in activities that lead to employment.
- Child care subsidies are based on the number of hours of the parent is participating, the age of the child/children, and the provider type and cost.
 - DWS can provide a subsidy to several types of providers, including licensed or accredited centers and home providers if they meet minimum requirements.
- Child care is available for children ages newborn through age 12 (up until the month of their 13th birthday).

Child Care Assistance

- DWS works to establish partnerships with community agencies who provide services that support the needs of the customers we serve.
- Housing, shelters, HEAT, food pantries, clothing, treatment facilities, education providers, just to name a few.
- Collaboration with these community partners helps create a supportive environment for these shared customers to reach their goals.

Community Partners

Rebecca's Story

- I came into the program as a new FEP customer. I am a young mother of 2 small children whose father is currently incarcerated. I had no means of financial support. I am very motivated to get a job and become self-sufficient. I started the program in November of 2012 and jumped in to every project with gusto. I created a dynamic and truly outstanding resumé, and spent as much time as possible out networking.
- I diligently pursued my job search as well. Two days after starting the program I interviewed for a Customer Service position at a plumbing company. I felt that the interview went quite well, but I hadn't been working for about 2 years. I was thinking it would still be a while before I got a job. The following day, I got a call from the plumbing company with a job offer — I cried and jumped around!
